Title of Independent Pattern Study:
For listing on officialtranscript

Occidental offers students, with the consultation of faculty members, the opportunity to design an Independent Pattern Study (IPS) in lieu of a major program. Amdependent Pattern of Study is appropriate when a student has a strong an well-developed motivation to pursue interdisciplinary study in areas where the College does not have a defined program such a program is articularly appropriate inewly emergingareas of study. It must, however, one which is feasible for both the College and the student. The student must demonstrate to the faculty involved a record of success in completing previous work in courses, independent study and other programs.

Each proposal foliPS should include the following omponents:

- 1. A statement of academic purpostake clear to a nonexpert the nature of the proposed study, its relationship to existing areas of study, attoe reasons for the studentnterest, which may be intellectual or vocational. Compare with other undergraduate programs in the proposed area, if possible. Show the need for an IPS, a need which cannot be met in an existing major program.
- 2. A program of at least 48 units, including 32 numbered 300 or greatled relevant coses already taken and a schedule of future courses; include independent study projects. Give a rationale for the inclusion of each course and show the depth of studyd the breadthi oy ()Tj 08 oaoc1ve)-2.6(n)2(g)12.8(m)19.2(aj9)-2.7(v)12.192-1.7(m)17
